Product Description

What is 99% Bodybuilding Peptide IGF1 LR3 Growth Hormone for Gaining Muscle 1mg?

Long(R3)-IGF-I is a synthetic variant of Insulin-Like Growth Factor-1 (IGF-I), a peptide hormone found naturally in the human body. It is a close derivative of this natural protein. The name "Long R3" actually describes how the original IGF-I protein has been modified. It is made by extending the IGF-I protein with a chain of 13 amino acids, and substituting an arginine at the 3rd position.

This new synthetic form of IGF-I seems to retain much of the hormone's original biological activity. It binds and activates the IGF-I receptor with similar affinity, and imparts a similar anabolic effect. However, it also differs by displaying a significantly longer half-life, and higher resistance to binding proteins, in comparison. As a result, milligram for milligram, Long(R3)-IGF-I is estimated to be approximately 2.5 to 3 times more potent than natural IGF-I. In the fitness community, this substance is most commonly used to support increases in muscle mass.

Function

Well it increases the effectiveness of an anabolic cycle, this is because of a very unique quality of igf-1-lr3, you see IGF-1 acts on several different tissues to enhance growth. IGF1 belongs in the 'superfamily' of substances known as 'growth factors.'

along with epidermal, transforming; platelet derived fibroblast, nerve, and ciliary neurotrophic growth factors. None of the other factors have any bearing on exoskeletal tissue incidentally; however, these agents all have in common the ability to stimulate cell division, known as mitogenesis, and cell differentiation. Meaning that in the case of IGF1 which does act on muscle tissue it will initiate the growth of new muscle fibers, and subsequently new receptors for testosterone. Many users on forums have unanimously concluded that it enhances cycles of steroids significantly. They also seem to be adamant about its ability to reduce fat and improve vascularity a great deal.

Another surprising effect that remains largely unexplained is that it actually Reverses testicular atrophy. Testicles if shrunken will return to "full swing" as it were even in the middle of a steroid cycle. If not shrunken they will not shrink during the cycle. This may explain partially why gains are kept after the cycle. The increased circulating levels of IGF seem to prevent shrinkage and allow for increased LH output post cycle.

So imagine using this on cycle and during PCT. increased muscle retention and faster recovery. IGF-1-LR3 will cause even greater elevations in Igf and the potential for more muscle growth and fat loss through its unique ability to drain fat cells and supply muscle cells with vital nutrients.
And theres more.

IGF-1 because of its action of forcing nutrients into the muscle, it increases the uptake of amino acids! Creatine, and other supplements, in particular collagen.

So it can help slow down the aging process, and improve recovery and increase physical performance.
