Brief Introduction:

Florfenicol is a synthetic monofluoride derivative of sulfoxycin. Its molecular formula is C₁₂H₁₄Cl₂FNO₄S. It is white or off-white crystalline powder, odorless, very slightly soluble in water and chloroform, slightly soluble in glacial acetic acid, soluble in methanol and ethanol. Chloramphenicol is a new broad - spectrum antibiotic for veterinary medicine.

Florfenicol is a kind of antibiotic drugs, which can inhibit peptidyl transferase activity and produce a broad antibacterial spectrum, including all kinds of Gram-positive bacteria, negative bacteria and mycoplasma. Susceptible bacteria include haemophilus of cattle and swine, Shigella dysentery, Salmonella, Escherichia coli, pneumococcus, influenzae, streptococcus, Staphylococcus aureus, chlamydia, leptospirosis, rickettsia, etc. The product can be dispersed into bacterial cells through lipid solubility, mainly acting on the 50s subunit of bacterial 70s ribosome, inhibiting the transpeptidase, blocking the growth of peptidase, inhibiting the formation of peptide chain, thus preventing the synthesis of protein, achieving antibacterial purpose.
