Brief Introduction:

IDRA-21 shows nootropic effects in animal studies, significantly improving learning and memory. It is around 10-30 times more potent than aniracetam in reversing cognitive deficits induced by orscopolamine, and produces sustained effects lasting for up to 48 hours after a single dose. The mechanism for this action is thought to be through promoting the induction of long-term potentiation between synapses in the brain.

IDRA-21 does not produce neurotoxicity under normal conditions, although it may worsen neuronal damage following global ischemia after stroke or seizures.
