Discription of somapure 191aa human growth hormone

The human body is anterior pituitary growth hormone (HGH). Growth hormone (GH) contains a hormone secreted by eosinophilic granulosa secretory cells and is composed of 191 amino acid peptides. Recombinant human growth hormone (rhGH) is produced by Escherichia coli expression technology, and its amino acid content and growth hormone sequence are completely identical to those of human. This product is complexed in Escherichia coli (ec:oli in our plant). The synthesis of prohormone is carried out by the prohormone. Prohormones are naturally occurring growth hormones in bacteria linked to signal peptides. Hormones divide in the bacterial cell wall, the final product is the same as the natural growth hormone before release, enters the cell membrane spacer, and then destroys the cell wall to collect, only the cell wall is intact, ensuring that the final product is less contaminated with bacterial proteins.

Low secretory type gene recombinant human growth hormone (rhGH) the role of endogenous growth hormone is the same with the human body, stimulate the epiphyseal cartilage cell differentiation, proliferation and stimulate growth cartilage stromal cell, stimulate the osteoblast proliferation, differentiation, linear growth caused by acceleration and bone width.
