Discription of powder peptide hgh 191aa

1. The human body is anterior pituitary growth hormone (hGH). Growth hormone (GH) contains hormones secreted by eosinophilic granulosa secretory cells and consists of 191 amino acid peptides.
2. This product is secreted by recombinant e genotype. When using E. coli expression technology to produce recombinant human growth hormone (rhGH), the amino acid content and sequence of growth hormone are completely identical to those of human.
3. This product is a complex in Escherichia coli (ec with us: oli). Synthesized from prehormone. Prohormones are growth hormones naturally present in bacteria that are linked to a signal peptide. The hormone divides in the bacterial cell wall, and the final product, which is exactly the same as the natural growth hormone, enters the intermembrane space of the cell wall before release, and then destroys the cell wall to collect, only the intact cell wall, ensuring that the final product has little bacterial protein contamination.
