Discription of medical grade 99% purity hgh 191 aa

Human Growth Hormone, commonly referred to as HGH or HGH 191AA, is produced in healthy humans by the pituitary gland, which is located at the base of the brain. As the name suggests, HGH controls the growth of the body, making sure that cells grow and mature at the proper rate.

HGH is discovered when doctors are trying to understand why some children are not developing at the right rate and are still very small and weak. It was found that injections of HGH corrected the problem and allowed the children to grow normally. This is obviously a huge blessing for those with special conditions, but as an interesting branch of that research, it was found that HGH can affect the growth of normal people. Thus HGH therapy was born.

Once derived from human cadavers, HGH is now produced in strictly controlled conditions by recombinant DNA technology. This process has undergone extended safety trials, and HGH is considered appropriate for use in humans.
