TB-500 is a synthetic peptide very similar in structure and function to Thymosin Beta-4, which is a natural regenerative protein. Thymosin beta 4 plays a role in the regulation of actin polymerization. It is also involved in cell proliferation, migration, and differentiation. TB-500 has also been shown to enhance tissue repair and protect against injury.

Tb-500 is one of the more interesting pep-tides on the market due to its potential for directly healing injuries. Some data, although limited, has also shown the pep-tide may in fact have heart-healing properties, particularly that of ventricle hypertrophy. However, because full data on Tb-500 is so limited, it's very hard to give an honest review beyond "he said she said." But it's also difficult to ignore that many users do tend to heal much faster with it than without, and in some cases, faster than would seem possible.

It's also important to note that Tb-500 users often report better results when used with Human Growth Hormone (H-G-H) or Human Growth Hormone Releasing Hormones (H-G-R-H) compounds. This isn't surprising when Growth Hormone (G-H) is one of the primary healing tools we have at our disposal. It's hard to say how much faster healing will be with or without a G-H product, but what we know of G-H (there is massive amounts of data available on G-H) it only makes sense that it would be much faster.
