Product Introduction Of PT 141 Men

PT-141, also known as bremelanotide, is a synthetic peptide that works similarly to the natural hormone melanocortin. It is FDA- approved to treat hypoactive sexual desire disorder (low sex drive) in premenopausal women. It is also used to treat low libido and erectile dysfunction in men.

The beneficial effect of PT-141 on sexual activity in men and women was discovered by accident. Initially, the drug was explored as a way to increase skin pigmentation. Its ability to increase sexual desire was an unexpected side-effect.

PT-141 is available as a subcutaneous injection and as a nasal spray. Clinical trials have shown that peptides pass from the nasal cavity to the brain.

Benefits of PT 141 Men

PT-141 appears to act on melanocortin receptors 3 and 4 in the brain. It enhances sexual arousal and penile erections by releasing dopamine, a neurotransmitter in the brain.

In a double-blinded placebo-controlled study, approximately 80 percent of men developed an erection satisfactory for intercourse after using PT-141 whether the cause of ED was physical or psychological, and 68 percent of men reported an increase in sexual desire.

Clinical trials are underway to further investigate PT-141; early results show that PT-141 is effective for men with diabetes and ED and for men who do not respond well to oral ED medications
