What Is Selank For Sale

Stress is the body's way of reacting to a specific situation that causes it to kick its defense mechanisms into gear. This defense is called "fight-or-flight" which is caused by cortisol, a hormone that is released from the adrenal gland. Sometimes it can emit overwhelming feelings of anxiety and depression depending on how the individual handles the situation. If these become chronic, they can have a negative influence on one's health.

In 2017, CBS News reported recent studies that revealed approximately 8.3 million American adults are stressed, depressed and anxiety-ridden and have been unsuccessful in seeking treatment for these conditions¹. This places people at a higher risk of developing more serious health problems such as metabolic syndrome, cardiovascular disease, fatigue, and neurological disorders. However, when individuals do try to seek treatment through therapy or prescribed antidepressants, the numbers remain stagnant. As a matter of fact, long-term use of stimulants or sedatives have shown to induce more health risks such as diabetes, weight gain, irritability, sexual problems, addiction and feelings of indifference. Furthermore, if people don't take these medications consistently, it can lead to severe neurological consequences. LifeWorks Wellness Center offers a different approach to handling those dealing with depression, anxiety and other brain conditions, one of them being the Selank Peptide.
