What Is Melanotan 2 10mg

Melanotan II is a synthetic variant of the naturally occurring peptide hormone alpha-melanocyte stimulating hormone (α -MSH)¹, which acts to stimulate the production of melanin in the skin – the molecule responsible for hair and skin pigmentation – through a process called melanogenesis². Naturally occurring α -MSH has also been shown to play a role in feeding, the maintenance of useable and stored energy, and sexual activity through its action as an agonist of melanocortin receptors MC1, MC3, and MC4; MC1 being responsible for skin pigmentation effects, and MC3 and MC4 being responsible for effects on appetite, metabolism, and sexual activity³.

Melanotan II is a cyclic heptapeptide originally developed as a defense against the potential cancer-causing effects of the sun's ultraviolet radiation through its action of stimulating natural melanin production in the absence of sunlight⁴, which allows for the sunless darkening of skin tone.

In addition to its promotion of skin tanning, Melanotan II has been shown to be a lipolytic (fat cell-destroying) agent⁵, a suppressant of appetite⁶, and a stimulant of libido in animal test subjects⁷. Melanotan II has demonstrated great efficacy in reducing caloric intake, while eliminating cholesterol and fat stores in obese mice through its targeted metabolic action⁸.

Function & Usage of Melanotan 2 10mg

Tanning peptide is a type of peptide that stimulates the production of melanin in the body to provide a deep, natural tan. Melanin is actually your body's natural response to UV damage, darkening the skin slightly to protect it from further damage.

Melanotan 2 is a synthetically created peptide that stimulates skin tanning, increased libido, and lipolysis (fat loss) through activation of specific melanocortin receptors in the body. Melanotan 2 encourages the body to increase melanin production, leading to powerful tanning and skin-darkening effects when used in conjunction with sun or UV exposure.

By using MT2, users experience quicker tanning and faster healing to damaged skin cells than would otherwise be possible. Because of this, it is especially suited to those whose skin is pale; those who are at greatest risk of developing skin cancer.

How to Inject Melanotan 2/ Tanning Injections

Melanotan 2 is delivered in dry powder form, reconstituted using sterile water, then injected under the skin using a Ultrafine needle syringe, where it is absorbed into the skin and spread throughout the body. Melanotan 2 can be injected either intramuscularly (into a muscle) or subcutaneously (underneath the skin). Many users report favoring subcutaneous injections due to subjective ease of administration.

Melanotan 2 dosage 3 distinct phases: an acclimation phase, a loading phase, and a maintenance phase. The amount of Melanotan 2 administered per injection typically ranges from 100 mcg up to 1000 mcg.
