What Is Triptorelin

Triptorelin is a form of hormone therapy called an LHRH (luteinizing hormone-releasing hormone) agonist. There are two brands of the same drug, which are called Decapeptyl SR and Gonapeptyl Depot. Triptorelin slows down the growth of prostate cancer cells by blocking a message from the brain telling the testicles to produce testosterone. Most prostate cancer cells need testosterone to grow and spread.

Triptorelin, a decapeptide, is a gonadotropin-releasing hormone agonist (GnRH agonist) used as the acetate or pamoate salts. By causing constant stimulation of the pituitary, it decreases pituitary secretion of gonadotropins luteinizing hormone (LH) and follicle stimulating hormone (FSH). Like other GnRH agonists, triptorelin may be used in the treatment of hormone-responsive cancers such as prostate cancer or breast cancer, precocious puberty, estrogen-dependent conditions (such as endometriosis or uterine fibroids), and in assisted reproduction. Triptorelin is also used as therapy in cases of gender dysphoria.

Applications of Triptorelin

Like other GnRH agonists, triptorelin may be used in the treatment of hormone-responsive cancers such as prostate cancer or breast cancer, precocious puberty, estrogen-dependent conditions (such as endometriosis or uterine fibroids), and in assisted reproduction. Triptorelin is marketed under the brand names Decapeptyl (Ipsen) and Diphereline and Gonapeptyl.

In the United States, it is sold by Watson as Trelstar. In Iran Triptorelin is marketed under the brand name Variopeptyl (Varian Darou Pajooh). In India, Dr. Reddy's Laboratories has launched recently Triptorelin under the brand name "Pamorelin LA". In men a reduction of serum levels into the range normally seen after surgical castration occurs approximately two to four weeks after initiation of therapy.

Effect of Triptorelin

Triptorelin raises testosterone levels by causing constant stimulation of the pituitary, it decreases pituitary secretion of gonadotropins luteinizing hormone (LH) and follicle stimulating hormone (FSH). Like other GnRH agonists, triptorelin may be used in the treatment of hormone-responsive cancers such as prostate cancer or breast cancer, precocious puberty, estrogen-dependent conditions (such as endometriosis or uterine fibroids), and in assisted reproduction.
