Description Of Testosterone Isocaproate For Bodybuilding:

Testosterone Isocaproate is not found individually but it is contained in some other drugs such as in Sustanon 250 and also in Omnadren, which are easily available in the market. Testosterone Isocaproate is somewhat same to the Testosterone Caproate but with a few exceptions. It has got same number of hydrogens, carbons, oxygen and same molecular weight but its active life is one day more as compared to Testosterone Caproate. Testosterone Isocaproate is bounded with a fatty acid or an ester which causes a delay in its release in the body. As told earlier that it has got a more active life which means it will stay in the body for a longer period of time and therefore to get it in the form of an injection once or at max twice a week in enough.

Testosterone Isocaproate will help in increasing the body weight and will also help in gaining the strength. It also helps in losing fat in the body and gives an increase in libido, red blood cells, stamina and quick recovery after heavy training. As told earlier it is very hard to be found in the market in its purest form but its raw powder form is available in the market in the form of Testosterone Cypionate and Testosterone Enanthate. Testosterone Isocaproate is useful in increasing the synthesis of protein in the body, reduction of the cortisol, increasing the ability to recover especially after heavy trainings, increasing strength and helps the person gaining more mass. It is also very efficient in both cutting and the bulking cycles. But as it is related with the family of androgen it will have aromatizing properties as well. Apart from these benefits it has got all other benefits associated with it which are also associated with any other testosterone.

As it has got many effects, it has got some side effects as well. One of its major and serious side effects in males is that as this testosterone is taken in the body, it limits the production of natural testosterone in the body. This is because when the natural production of testosterone observes that testosterone from some external source are supplied to the body, it automatically stops or lowers the production. First it limits the natural production but if the usage of external testosterone is continued for a longer period of time then natural production is stopped. Another major side effect is of aromatization. The process of conversion of Testosterone into estrogens is called as aromatization. Estrogens are basically the sex hormone of the females. These estrogens attach with the tissues of breasts of men and cause them to get bigger. Apart from this, retention of water is also common. Retention of water means collection of fluids under the skin which makes muscle look not much active.

There are some other side effects also associated with the excess use of this isocaproate. This excess usage would cause skin diseases and hair loss. Skin diseases include formation of acne on different body parts and hair loss includes male pattern baldness. Extra growth of hair on body and face, disturbance in liver function, disturbance in immunity system and cholesterol levels are also caused due to excess usage of Testosterone Isocaproate. Increase in aggression, depression, swinging of moods, irritability and becoming hostile are also few side effects associated with Testosterone Isocaproate.

Testosterone Isocaproate can be taken in the form of injection. For beginners the dosage is recommended to be 250 mg/week which can be taken once or twice in the week. For professional body builders the dosage can be increased to 1000 mg per week as well.
