What Is Testosterone Base?

Testosterone is an injection preparation containing testosterone (no ester) in the oil base.

In the bodybuilder, "base" is known to be a very effective mass agent. It is usually listed as the most potent injectable steroid available, leading to an incredible rapid growth in muscle mass and strength.

This is mainly due to the very rapid effect of the drug, since the water-based steroids begin to enter the bloodstream almost immediately after administration of the injection. Unlike longer esters, such as heptanoate or cyclopentamate, it takes several weeks for the blood to reach the maximum level of treatment, based on just a few days. Obviously, the metabolic effect of this testosterone will be much faster than what we expect for oil-based (esterification) preparations. So the dosage of testosterone you need to concern :

It is also important to remember that 100 mg of testosterone ester is not equivalent to 100 mg of testosterone in pure testosterone (as in the matrix). When the ester is present, its weight is clearly included in the total milligram of the formulation. Look at testosterone heptanoate, 100mg of this compound is equivalent to only 72mg of raw testosterone. So the weekly use of 400mg heptanoate bodybuilders really get about 288mg of testosterone per week. This is clearly a significant increase in the average male testosterone level of the average male, which is in the range of 2.5 to 11 mg per day. The general view, however, is that during the circulation of the testosterone matrix, we usually see an even more dramatic increase in testosterone intake than usual oil. According to common recommendations, athletes usually inject 100 mg of testosterone daily, a total of 700 mg per week. This is 40 times the amount of normal men. Those who try this cycle are rarely disappointed with the results because this heavy dose of this hormone will produce significant weight gain.

The most common method of testosterone matrices is to inject drugs daily. The dosage will vary greatly depending on the needs of the individual, but is usually in the range of 50 mg to 100 mg per injection.

We can see the effect of testosterone :

In most cases, the results will be staggering. While some users will complain about discomfort when injecting water-based steroids, the substrate is usually well tolerated. Such as the expected strong androgen, the base can produce many unpleasant side effects. As with any testosterone product, there will be a high estrogen conversion rate. Estrogen levels are actually very fast with the testosterone matrix, which may be the worst testosterone used when trying to avoid edema. Male breast development can also develop very rapidly during a cycle, and in many cases the drug will not be tolerated without taking another anti-estrogen. The combination of Nolvadex and Proviron is an effective way to avoid experiencing such side effects and is usually removed from the beginning of the cycle in order to prevent this from occurring before they become problems. Sensitive individuals may find it more sensible to invest in aromatic compounds Arimidex, Femara or Aromasin. These anti-aromatase drugs are more effective in controlling estrogen. It is also important that athletes monitor blood pressure and kidney function during heavy cycles because water retention becomes more pronounced. Although testosterone stress on the liver is very small, but the drug on the kidney irritation is higher, the dose is higher. Of course, if the athlete encounters significant high blood pressure or difficulty urinating (urine pain or blackening), the cycle should probably stop and the doctor can visit. Because it is converted to DHT. It is therefore expected to tolerate oily skin, acne, aggression and body / facial hair growth during a typical cycle. Propecia / Proscar is a good idea for those who tend to have male baldness because the known base can easily exacerbate this situation. Men with existing hair loss problems may actually prefer to stay away from this steroid completely and find it just for a powerful project adventure. Chronic effects of oil-based injections such as heptanoate or cyclopentanepropionate will be a better place to start if people still want to use injectable testosterone.
