Brief Introduction of PT141

PT-141 (Bremelanotide) is a highly potent synthetic peptide analogue of α -MSH that may elicit aphrodisiac effects through stimulation of melanocortin receptors. PT-141 (Bremelanotide) consists of seven amino acids and is a cyclic, shortened lactam variant of alpha-Melanocyte-stimulating hormone (α -MSH), a multifunctional peptide that regulates a broad array of physiological functions. In studies, bremelanotide was shown to induce lordosis in an animal model and was also effective in treating sexual dysfunction in both men (erectile dysfunction or impotence) and women (sexual arousal disorder).

PT141 is a copy of a hormone which has an effect on the nervous system called alpha-melanocyte-stimulating hormone. It has been established that melanocyte-receptors in the brain play a part in several behaviours including sexual arousal. So stimulating these receptors using PT141 may stimulate sexual function. A study of around 40 female rats showed a three- to five-fold increase in solicitations in rats who were given the drug compared to those which were not. Jim Pfaus, professor of psychology at Concordia University, is carrying out the research into PT141's effects on female rats, and he told BBC News Online: "It could be bigger than Viagra."

Benefits Of PT 141:

Bremelanotide (PT-141) was developed from Melanotan 2 (MT-II). PT-141 is a metabolite of MT-II that lacks the C-terminal amide function-stripping away tanning properties.

PT-141 is a potential remedy for the treatment of sexual dysfunction; specifically, male erectile dysfunction. Studies have shown that PT-141 does not act on the vascular system like former compounds, but allegedly works by activating melanocortin receptors in the brain, therefore helping increase one's sexual stimulation.

PT-141 is a melanocortin based peptide that has shown effectiveness in clinical studies on both male and female rats. Male rats have shown erectile response with doses as low as 1-2 mgs whereas most female rats have shown positive results with higher doses around 2-3 mgs.

PT-141, Used as an erectile dysfunction solution, it is used by men who want to bring back the fire into their sex life in terms of achieving rock-hard erections that do not only satisfy them but their partners as well. In the process, they never have to take any other medications or choose hormone replacement therapy again with it at their side.
