Product Introduction Of Selank

Selank is a nootropic, anxiolytic peptide based drug developed by the Institute of Molecular Genetics of the Russian Academy of Sciences. Selank is a heptapeptide with the sequence Thr-Lys-Pro-Arg-Pro-Gly-Pro. It is a synthetic analogue of a human tetrapeptide tuftsin.

Selank is a synthetic analogue of the immunomodulatory peptide tuftsin; as such, it mimics many of its effects. It has been shown to modulate the expression of Interleukin-6 (IL-6) and affect the balance of T helper cell cytokines. It has been shown to influence the concentration of monoamine neurotransmitters and induce metabolism of serotonin. There is evidence that it may also modulate the expression of brain-derived neurotrophic factor (BDNF) in rats.

Selank, as well as a related peptide drug, semax, have been found to inhibit enzymes involved in the degradation of enkephalins and other endogenous regulatory peptides, and this action may be involved in their effects.

Applications Of Selank

Selank is closely related to Semax, a hexapeptide previously invented by the same institute. Some consider Selank to be a more efficient alternative to Semax - a drug currently approved for use in Russia and Ukraine. Both Selank and Semax seem to be less known in the western countries, due to the conflict of interest and subsequently lack of marketing efforts from the "big pharma" industry.

Selank as a nootropic

Recreationally Selank is used to improve one's ability to focus and concentrate, reduce mental fatigue, increase mental sharpness and increase memory and learning capacity. The first noticeable effect is usually stabilization of mood and general feeling of well-being.

Effects Of Selank

Experimental and clinical studies showed the following pharmacological effects of Selank:

improvement of learning and memory processes (reference, reference)

increased sensory attention

increased curiosity

increased mental clarity

restoration of balance of serotonergic and noradrenergic brain system activity (reference)

anti-anxiety - inhibition of anxiety (reference)

antiviral activity with no negative effects (reference)

psychostimulant, anti-asthenic - increased mental energy (reference)

stabilization of mood and overall feeling of wellbeing reversal of anhedonia (restoring the feeling of pleasure)
